WAS HE FLUNG OFF THE ROOF

A YOUNG MAN FOUND DYING IN FRONT OF A SEVENTEENTH STREET TENEMENT.

Sounds of a Struggle on the Housetop at the An Accountion With His Dying Breath in the Hospital-A Midnight Mystery Which the Police Are Trying to Solve. John Scannell, who was twenty-three years

ald, and employed as a laborer on the elerated railroad, was picked up in front of 439 West Seventeenth street about 2 o'clock this morning by Policeman Gillespie, of the street station, suffering rom a broken leg, a ragged wound in the right arm near the shoulder, made evidently with a knife, and internal injuries. He was taken to the New York Hospital, where he died about 6 o'clock. having, with the exception of a few moments, remained unconscious.

The young man was unmarried and lived with his mother at 443 West Seventeenth street. Yesterday morning he went to work as usual, and until she saw his almost lifeless body at the hospital Mrs. Scannell heard nothing from her son. From the nature of the wounds, and the circumstances connected herewith the police are of the opinion that Scannell was assaulted on the roof of the house he lived in about 1 o'clock this morning, and then either thrown or chased from the roof.

Scannell has lived in Seventeenth street only a few weeks. A single key to the street door of the tenement did duty for mother and son. They occupied rooms near the roof, and frequently, when obliged to be out late, the young man would go through the building 441, gain the roof by the scuttle, and then rap at the shed door leading to his own house until his mother admitted him.

Last night Scannell did not return home until about midnight. Where he spent the evening has not been learned by the police. It is said by those who claim to know, but who give no authority for the story, that shortly before midnight he was engaged in a quarrel outside Duffy's saloon at Seventeenth street and Ninth avenue, that in the row he was stabbed several times, that he was followed to the roof of 441, again assailed there and that finally he was pitched over to the pavement.

At about 1.50 o'clock this morning Mrs. with his mother at 443 West Seventeenth there and that finally he was pitched over to the pavement.

At about 1.30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Mary Smith, who occupies roms in Scannell's house, was awakened by sounds of a struggle and the breaking of glass. Her back room window, which is of transom shape, opens directly under the skylight, and the pieces of glass fell directly in that transom and bounded into the room. Following the disturbance came a silence, and Mrs. Smith went to the front room. While she was gone her husband heard footsteps on the roof as though many persons were scuffling, then followed a sound of hurrying steps, a clatter as though the persons were running downstairs, and then came silence again.

Little was thought of the occurrence by Mrs. Smith or her husband, and though other women were also disturbed, no one thought it worth while to investigate the cause.

When the impates of the bouse were awak.

thought it worth while to investigate the cause.

When the inmates of the house were awakened two hours later, and a search of the roof made, ample evidences of a struggle were found. The slats that serve as footboards for the roof were broken, many of them; the skylight windows, besides being broken, were marked as though by foot prints, scratches, made by nails in a boot heel, being plainly seen, and finger marks at the two chimneys showed where some one had dodged his pursuers. The dead man's hat was picked up in one corner, at the point where Scannell fell or was thrown off the roof. Across the roof is a high rail fence. There is a level stretch of shed running some three feet beyond this and looking directly to the pavement, and this is unguarded. To have reached the projection, one could either ment, and this is unguarded. To have reached the projection, one could either climb the fence or force his body through an aperture, just large enough, which faces the side of house 439, where the body was found, and it is through this opening that, if murder was committed, Scannell's body was pushed. No. 439 is partially encircled by a plain wooden fence, running about six feet on the sidewalk, and inclosing a small garden. When the body fell it struck this fence, knocking it down, and it is here that the man's leg was broken. That he spoke after he fell and before he was picked up is doubtful, though Mrs. Dannenfelsar, who lives in 443, thinks at about the time of the tragedy she heard a voice call "Mother. Mother," though so indistinctly that it sounded as though the cry came from a person either very young or very weak.

At the hospital Scannell tried hard to speak, and, after many failures, articulated sufficiently to give his hearers the impression that he still believed himself assailed, and that he was begging for mercy. Then he grew afbit stronger, and said quite plainly, it is claimed:

"There were too many against me; it was profair."

There were too many against me; it was Then he became unconscious again and so Infair."

Then he became unconscious again and so remained until he died.

The police are investigating the story. While no arrests have yet been made, several suspected persons in the neighborhood are under surveillance.

The neighborhood has not the best reputation in the world with the police, and the dead man claimed that not a great while ago, when coming home late he was attacked almost at his door by a stranger who drew a knife. He was in constant terror, and often expressed his fears.

Scannell is but little known in the neighborhood, but tenants in the house say he was a temperate, hard-working fellow. The theory is advanced that possibly in the dark, he stumbled off the shed, though that seems hardly probable. The cut in the arm, which resembles a knife thrust, may have been made when the bedy struck the picket fence. A fire escape is outside the window of Mrs. Scannell's room, a short distance below the roof, and it is thought that possibly the young man's intention was to elude his pursuers by dropping to the fire escape, and that he was unable to reach it.

President Von der Ahe has not r-turned from New York yet, but there is little doubt that he wants to sell his crack pitcher to Brooklyn, and that Brooklyn will get him. CARLTON'S GREAT RACE. He Wins the Manchester November Handl-

cap Carrying 138 Pounds. [SPECIAL CABLE TO THE WORLD.]

LONDON, Nov. 26 .- This is not only the last day of the Manchester November meeting but the last day of the official racing season under the rules of the Jockey Club. The race of the day was the Manchester November Handicap at £20 each,£10 forfeit with £1,000 added, the owner of the second to receive £100 out of the stakes; entrance 5 guineas, the only liability for horses declared by Nov. 15; winners after the publication of the weights on Nov. 10 to carry 5 pounds for one race, 10 pounds for two races or for one of the value of £300; the distance, one mile, six furlongs and 196 yards. The stake originally closed with seventy-five subscribers, of which forty-three declared. The top weight of those accepted was Lord Edward Somerset's Carlton at 138 pounds, and right well did he sustain his reputation of being the best long-distance horse in England by winning somewhat easily from Mr. W. Gardner's three-year-old Sorrente, at 91 pounds, with Alec Taylor's Stourhead third, at 113 pounds—a double honor for Taylor, as he is also the trainer of Carlton, who is a four-year-old, by Pell Mell, out of Bonny May, by Newminster, Pell Mell being by Young Melbourne, out of Makeshift, by Voltigeur. sault described in The World last evening, has waived examination in the case before Justice Aldridge, and furnished bail for appearance before the Grand Jury. Max Salinger, president of the Board of Aldermen, furnished the required bond.

The scandals aired by the arrest of the Justice have created the biggest kind of a sensation in Jersey City. The divorce suits in the families of Butcher De Groff and Lawyer Henry E. Wills are the outcome of a strange scandal.

The two families lived opposite each other in Academy street for years, and at one time their respective heads were warm friends. But according to the stories now circulated Mr. De Groff's liking for Mrs. Wills soon became the cause of the trouble. Wills and his wife separated, the husband going to the home of his parents at Short Hill, and the wife to her mother. She instituted the divorce suit, alleging cruelty, and it is still in the Court of Chancery.

Mr. De Groff denres the alleged intimacy with Mrs. Wills, and threatens dire vengeance on Justice Crossman. The latter carries on his business as usual in his little office opposite the Court. House and says that he is preparing a written statement to be made public in a few days, the nature of which will surprise more than a few.

* [SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.--Littlewood says he could but will not break the record. Since midnight he has plodded the track at an easy gait, taking occasional rests. His trainer, Frank Dole, of the University of Pennsylvania, says this was done to have him in condition for making a big last day's score. Albert is as springy in his steps as he was on Monday at the beginning of the race. The other men are also in great condition. Probably there never were five men on any track who looked so well on the last day of a race as do the quintet who are spinning off the miles at Twenty-third and Chestnut streets. It is probable that they will finish about as they are. There will be a hot fight between Noremac and Panchot this evening, and Littlewood will start this afternoon and do sharp running until the closs.

The match will end to-night at 10,15 o'clock.
It is probable that Littlewood will cover 600 miles by the time, the match closes, but not miles by the time the match closes, but not much more than that.

Elson is the most miserable-looking human being imaginable and is the butt of the jokes for the crowd. Letters have been written him threatening him with arrest and imprisonment if he does not make 500 miles. The old fellow takes everything in dead earnest, and his efforts to get there are pitiful as well as amusing.
The feeling between Noremac and Panchot is very bitter, and they call each other names every time they get close enough. There is some fear that Noremac may lose his temper, and get into a personal en-counter, and his faithful trainer, Joe Miller, is very much exercised over the prospect. The score at 3 o'clock:

HANLAN DEFEATED

Beach Wins the Sculling Contest on the Nepean River.

Description of the Course Over Which the Race Was Rowed.

The Australian is Now Champion of the World-Hanlan's Confidence Before He Left America-Defeated by Beach for the Third Time-John Teemer is the Only Hope Left for America-His Speed.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 26.—Beach has beat Hanlan again, and sporting men on this part of the globe are exuberant with delight.

The struggle was an exciting one from start to finish. Beach caught the water first and quickly gained a little more than a boat length. Hanlan was right on the Australian's heels, and, although the former was never passed, he succeeded in reaching the finish line only two lengths ahead of the Hanlan had free scope and fair play to day. Beach never appeared in better form.

He was cheered enthusiastically by thousands of people on the river banks along the course. Beach's victory to-day gives him the undisputed claim to the championship of the world.

The Nepean River, on which Hanlan and Beach rowed, is situated thirty-four miles from Sydney. It can easily be reached by road or rail. The course is three miles and a quarter long and three miles of this is perfeetly straight. The only curve is a slight one for the first quarter of a mile. . The river is about a quarter of a mile wide throughout, save at the finish, which is some sixty yards from the railway bridge. Here it broadens out a little. On the banks there are but two residences. The one on the eastern shore is owned by Mr. Ewins, a Sydney merchant, and the other, on the opposite shore, by G.

R. Dibbs. M. L. A. There are two little creeks running into the river from either side. Formerly there w a sunken rock midway in the stream, but this was removed by blasting, leaving the channel clear. The depth of the water averages about five fathoms.

A strange feature, but a most important one, is the entire absence of tide, current or stream. In fact the river is practically a large canal, inclosed for four miles by sloping banks. It is certainly a fair course, and the loser cannot attribute his defeat to the river. Below is given a good map of the course, with points of interest on the banks ;

THE COURSE. The international sculling regatta for the championship of the world, which took place on the Thames, England, on Aug. 30, 31, and Sept. 1, was won by over all competitors. The course was in each heat three miles and quarter straightaway. The entries were Wallace Ross, John Teemer and George W. Lee, of the United States; George Bubear and George J. Perkins, England, and William Beach, Neil Matterson and Peter Kemp, of Australia. Beach and after the second trial heats had been rowed. They rowed the final heat over the regular championship course from Putney to Mortlake on Sept. 1. Beach won easily in 22m. 50s., making him the champion of the world, a title which he still holds in virtue of his victory over Hanlan.

HANLAN'S DEFRAT IN 1885. Until 1885 Hanlan held the world's championship. In that year he first met Beach in Australia in sculling regattas on the River Nepean, on which occasion he was twice badly whipped by Beach over a three and a quarter mile course in 20m. 29s., thus virtually closing the cham-pionship. Hanlan, however, would never acknowledge this to be a fair race, claiming that he was not in condition, and ever since that time he has been seeking an opportunity to meet Beach a second time. The race to-day settles the matter beyond further dispute.

HOSMER SAYS TEEMER CAN BEAT BEACH.

Hanlan's Defeat was Expected-Australia's Climate Does Not Agree With Him.

George H. Hosmer, the well-known oarsman, said of Hanlan's defeat by Beach : " It is no more than I expected. The climate of Australia never agreed with Ned. After his last trip there it took him a year to get back to his rowing form. Again, he was handicapped by the abscess which formed on his right wrist. Naturally it weakened his arm, and a thing like that tells in a hard race."

Do you think Teemer can defeat Beach?" "Yes, I think he can; in fact, I feel sure that he can. Teemer would have peculiar advantages if he rowed a race with Beach in Australia. He was born in Pittsburg, and worked most of his life in a rolling-mill, where the heat is intense. It follows that he would be a good man to row in a hot cli-

" Is there any other oarsman that would have a chance with Beach ?" "If Gaudaur was in good shape, judging from his race with Beach in England, I think he would beat him. Why, he rowed Beach to a standstill, and he had only been in the country three or four weeks, while Beach as thoroughly acclimated.

" Do you think Hanlan will retire?" "No, he is a young man yet, nearly five years younger than Beach, in fact. His trip o Australia will not be a failure in a mone. tary sense. He will probably divide $10,000 or $15,000 in gate money. Then, in a letter he wrote me a short time ago he spoke of matches with Kemp and Trickett. By the way, look out for Kemp—he is a dangerous man. He rows very fast."

TEEMER'S OPINION OF THE RACE.

Canada's Sculler Probably Not in Good Condition-Koonan's Proposition.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] Boston, Nov. 26.-John Teemer, champion oarsman of America, and Al Hamm, his mate in doubles, called on THE WORLD correspondent to-day to learn how the race between Hanlan and Beach had terminated. When told that Hanlan had been beaten, Teemer said:

"I am satisfied now, more than ever, that there is a chance of defeating Beach, as anybody who has seen him row will acknowledge body who has seen him row will acknowledge that if it were a possible thing he would best Hanlan as much as he could. Beach has no friendship for Hanlan, as has been shown when they met in England last season, and, outside of their personal quarrel, Beach has got a weakness much the same as Hanlan to show his opponent up by running away from him if it were possible.

"The closeness of the race surprises me, and taking into consideration the ocean voyage and the short time that Ned has had to get acclimated I think he has made a wonderful performance, and might possibly have won had the race been in England.

"In forming an opinion one should not be too hasty, as the attention of everybody is turned to the condition of Hanlan, and not a question is raised as to how the Australian felt at the time of the race. Beach may not have been feeling over and above well. I simply surmise this, as there is a possibility of his not being in strictly first-class fix. However, we will have to wait further developments before we are in a position to gauge the Australian's powers as a sculler compared with my own.

"Hanlan has proven himself to be a very with my own.
"Hanlan has proven himself to be a very

"Hanlan has proven himself to be a very plucky follow in going so far to do battle with a man that had previously defeated him on two different occasions. And although there has been times when my love for Ned was not over and above brotherly, yet nothing would have pleased me more than to have seen him bring back the proud title which he lost in 1885."

James Keenan, the well-known sporting man said. "I have been talking with Pete man, said: "I have been talking with Pete Duryea and we have come to the conclusion that we will give Beach $1,500 for expenses if he will come to the United States and row Teemer, or we will accept $1,000 for expenses and go to Australia and meet him. Until I hear something definite about the race. I cannot state with any authority what action we will take in regard to the matter."

NORTH HUDSON DRIVING PARE, GUTTENBURG. Nov. 26.—The delightful weather brought a large crowd out to the races here to-day. The track is ery heavy, but with a dozen starters in the first race the betting was about as brisk as could be. The patience of the crowd was sorely tried by the riders and starters. For nearly an hour they "monkeyed" at the post. Finally they got a start, and at the finish the first and second favorites, Neptunus and Natior, finished in those positions. The second race was a big upset, neither of the favorites getting a place, Gracle and Lagardere running first and second, with Gracle paying $95.55 in the mutuels.
